Repulsive Acts, Future Development

Campus Policies Told By University Chancellor

By DAVID LEWIS
Sentinel Staff Writer

Certain activities that have occurred on the University of California campus here are not seditious or treasonous, but would be if this nation were at war, according to UC chancellor John S. Galbraith.

Galbraith told 45 persons at a meeting of the San Diego North Shores Republican League Thursday night that "we are not legally at war in Vietnam and therefore actions on campus—within the law—are not seditious or treasonous. It would be a very different situation if we were at war," said the chancellor.

Galbraith, who gave a talk about the university and its future, was questioned for more than an hour by the audience on student unrest and purchase by the university regents of acreage in the La Jolla Farms area.

Galbraith said a developmental plan for the Farms is expected to be completed in several months. The chancellor said the plans would be presented to residents before they were forwarded to the university administration.

Galbraith also said that a repertory theater being jointly planned by the community and the university may be located in the Farms area.

"It's just talk at this point," said Galbraith. "No decisions will be made until we talk with the residents."

Galbraith said the Farms area has been scheduled for inclusion in the university complex ever since 1959 when a private consulting firm recommended that it be included. The chancellor said "sporadic negotiations" for purchase had been carried on since 1959 by the regents, not by officials of the local campus.

"The university's concern and the regents' concern is that new campuses avoid the fate of older campuses," said Galbraith. "UCLA came to Westwood in 1929 and was in the middle of a bean patch. Today that campus is seriously constructed because of the growth around it and there is a very tense relationship between the university and nearby residents."

Galbraith said the regents are concerned about providing sufficient space for development of university-related activities.

"The University will be living in this area a long time after we're all gone," said Galbraith. "Over the long pull the people will regard the university purchase of this land as an asset rather than a liability." The chancellor said the forthcoming plans for the Farms area "will document the fact that the university wants to work closely with residents."

Galbraith said that 500 acres owned by the university at the former Camp Elliott eight miles from La Jolla are committed for various uses. Galbraith said the land is being used for an animal farm, for a project in cooperation with the San Diego Zoo, and for development of geophysical devices.

On campus unrest, Galbraith said he feels there are no more than 30 activists on the San Diego campus out of 3,000 now enrolled. He said most students are at the university to obtain an education.

Galbraith said that by its very nature a university "provides an environment in which people express a variety of opinions—some of which will be very unpopular.

"Some people say things that are very repulsive to use" said Galbraith. "In the university we have youth engaged in contemplation of society, a society that is deeply disturbed.

"The focal point is Vietnam. These things focus on the university and you get manifestations that you, and I as an administrator, find disturbing. But if we believe in a government of law that gives us our freedoms, we must accept these things that we find repulsive.

"There is an inclination on the party of many of us to strike out at things that are repulsive to us."

Galbraith said there is a difference between dissent and disruption on the university campus. Galbraith said the university will tolerate dissent, but not disruption.

"The position that the UCSD administration has taken is that nobody is going to disrupt this campus and violate the order of the university." Galbraith said visits by Dow Chemical Co. recruiters drew pickets, but that those involved were warned in advance that blocking recruitment would bring interim suspension.

"There has never been a case on the UCSD campus where a student has disrupted the campus and not been disciplined," said Galbraith.

Galbraith said that "excessive zeal" on the part of news media in covering demonstrations by minority groups "have contributed more toward showing the present generation as activist than it really is." Galbraith said news media often report on a demonstration, but rarely tell what disciplinary measures are taken later.

Galbraith said he will return to San Diego after he leaves here for a year as a visiting scholar at Cambridge University.

A LOT ON THE BALL—The North Shores produced the top two individual winners in the junior sweepstakes division of the annual San Diego Science Fair. They are Barsha Coleman of Pacific Beach Junior High and Richard Saarni (right), of Dana Junior High School. Steven Klug who won first place in biology and microbiology joins in the discussion.

ANNUAL SCIENCE FAIR

Three Students Win Sweepstakes Honors

Peninsula schools produced three sweepstakes winners in the recent Greater San Diego Science Fair.

Jeff Wolf and Ric Stephenson from Point Loma High took the senior group category, with Richard Saarni, a Dana Junior High eighth grader winning top honors as an individual exhibitor.

Jeff and Ric decided to find out what caused tornadoes. To do so, they did the most obvious thing — built their own tornado. Actually the boys built several mini-tornadoes in a special chember and made several interesting observations.

Through observing velocities up to 200 mph, simulated atmospheric electricity, humidity and temperature variations, they concluded that the weather bureau could stand to learn a lot more about tornadoes.

Richard's project, basically, involved the care and feeding of octopi. Using subjects captured in Point Loma tidal pools, he made some interesting observations about the often misunderstood creatures.

The big secret to octopus watching is keeping their enclosures as clean as possible. They cannot survive under usual fish tank procedures, but require fresh sea water and a near spotless "home."

Red When Hot

Richard says they have definite personalities much as humans have. They are more inquisitive when young and change color to varying degrees of red when aroused angered or mating.

They have a very rapid rate of growth and are amazingly strong. An octopus weighing only a few ounces can pull up to 20 times its weight.

Other Peninsula winners are: Point Loma High School: Carl Warner, third place, earthspace sciences; Kathryn Anderson, second, chemistry-biochemistry; Douglas Luther, first, physics; Douglas Palmer, first, mathematics-computers; Penny Parsons, second, mathematics, computers; Larry Lewis, second, engineering-electronics.

Dana Junior High: Marilyn Thoman, second earth-space sciences; Damon Meyer, 3rd, chemistry-biochemistry; John Hamilton, third, engineering-electronics; Michael Williams, third, engineering-electronics.

Collier Junior High: William Moonan, third, mathematics-computers.

Special awards: Carl Warner, American Society of Civil Engineers; Richard Saarni, Scripps; Douglas Luther, Optical Society of San Diego; Michael Williams, Society of American Value Engineers; Jeff Wolfe and Ric Stephenson, National Aeronautics and Space Administration; Douglas Luther, U. S. Air Force Physics.

60,000 FOOT RUNWAY PLANNED

Huge Jet Port Will Blanket The Mesa!

By SLOOF LIRPA,
Stuff Reporter

DATELINE, SAN DIEGO, APRIL 1ST.

The long-fought battle of where to put San Diego's airport is finally over, according to an announcement tomorrow jointly filed by city, state and Federal agencies.

City Council, the Port District, state legislators and the War Department have all come to some sort of agreement that Lindbergh Field can be shut down almost immediately, and the big jets can start putting down on the mesa east of Highway 395 and between Aero Drive and Clairemont Mesa Boulevard.

Stan Bokeldortz, regional head of the Federal Aeronaves Administration, stated his agency cannot condone the mud-flat now known as San Diego Intranational Airport at Limbergh Field.

"Unless we get air traffic out of that area, somebody's going to really be sorry," Bokeldortz commented during a recent violation of the Brown Act in City Hall.

"Yes, and besides, many little league fields could be built in this area, and flying baseballs do not break as many windows as sonic booms or other unfortunate insurance claims," commented Deputy Mayor Helen Cobb, now starring in Synanon Theater's great play, "Take Me Out Of The Ball Game."

Councilman Sam Loftin said he'd fly over the area in his helicopter and see if any major problems will arise in parking the city's new Ford Tri-Motor at the new jet strip.

"A recent book criticized our airport for only having an 8,000 foot runway, but we have no problems now," Loftin said, "our worries are over since the new runway will be 60,000 feet long."

Loftin was also overjoyed that takeoffs and landings will be made over the heads of Clairemont and Kearny Mesa residents instead of Point Lomans.

Walsh Takes Off

Councilman Jack Walsh, horrified at the prospect of having a huge jet airport in his district, immediately filed papers to run for President.

"I know not what course others may take," commented Walsh, "but give me liberty or give me death!"

The FAA advises residents within three miles of the new airport to take remedial steps in construction of their houses in view of the size of planes that will soon traffic the skyways over the mesa.

"Glass is, of course, out," said Bokeldortz, "and thick concrete roofs are best. After all, remember what a hard time the allies had in trying to bomb the Nazi submarine pens in World War Two."

Mayor's Conference

Mayor Frank Curran held a press conference tomorrow in his campaign headquarters, and stated: "This new airport will be the crowning achievement of our city's Tricentennial in 2069!

"We will build a huge statue of Wrong Way Corrigan that can double as an air traffic control tower and a lifeguard station for the entire bay and beaches area."

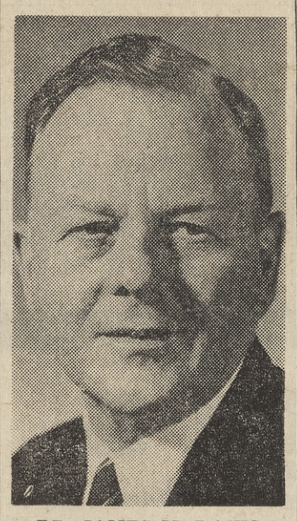
Low Cost Housing

Tentatively, the Port District plans to either build low-cost housing on the present airport land, or lease it out to SeaWorld for a mammoth linear accelerator thrill ride.

Mrs. Bartle Frinkwort of the Citizens Coordinated Committee To Save A Hundred said her group will push to have the area planted as an apricot grove or possibly a Greek outdoor theater.

If this bogus news story has excited your circulation for just a second, then turn to the two color pages inside that show you a host of April Fool's Day bargains. And that is no joke.

Local Provost Returns



DR. JAMES M. DAVIS

Dr. James M. Davis, provost for overseas campuses of the United States International University will return next week from the three-week Comparative Education Society Seminar and Field Study "Contrasts in European Secondary and Higher Education."

Dr. Davis also recently participated in the 10th annual Conference of Society for International Development in Washington, D.C. He was on the panel dealing with career opportunities in international service.

Methodist Minister To Give Sermon

Rev. Vlad Benko, pastor of St. Peter's By The Sea Lutheran Church at 1371 Sunset Cliffs Blvd., Point Loma, has announced that Rev. Robert E. Fehlman, pastor of the Point Loma Methodist Church, will give a special Lenten sermon at the Lutheran Church at 12:15 p.m., Wednesday. The theme of Fehlman's sermon will be "Mission Not Impossible."

Fehlman, pastor of the Methodist Church the last five years, is also a vice-chairman of the Wesley Palms Board of Directors and very active in local affairs as a member of the Ocean Beach Town Council and the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce. His current primary interests lie in the areas of the youth generation, new forms of ministry and practical grass-roots ecumenical efforts.

Ad Hoc Group Works Toward Referendum

An ad hoc citizens group that opposes the city council's decision to put the Planning Department under control of the city manager hopes to have gathered 10,000 signatures for a referendum by Tuesday.

Citizens for Good Government, which has spearheaded the drive, plans to gather 20,000 signatures before the referendum drive ends April 16. Nearly 12,000 signatures of registered voters are needed to put the issue on the ballot.

A spokesman for the group said an estimated 6,000 signatures had been collected by late Friday. Petition circulators were expected to be canvassing most major shopping centers for signatures this weekend.

Co-chairmen of the nonpartisan citizens committee working on the referendum are Arthur S. Johnson and Harry Standefer, both businessmen. Executive director is Mrs. Dorthea Edmiston.

Last week the citizens group established a campaign office at 801 Washington St. The drive started Mar. 19 only hours after city councilmen voted 6-3 to approve the switch. The Planning Department has had independent status for more than 37 years.

The same issue has been turned down three times by voters in the past five years, according to Mrs. Edmiston. In the previous elections the measure has been placed on the ballot by the City Council. A majority of the Councilmen rejected a move to put it on the ballot this time.

If the referendum drive succeeds, the City Council must repeal the ordinance or place it on the November general election ballot for action. It will not go into effect until after a vote of the people.

Mrs. Edmiston said that signing the petitions for the referendum does not necessarily indicate support for or against the council action. She said it means that the signer feels that the voters should have the final say on the Planning Department status.

SCOPE Takes A Vacation

SCOPE will be taking a vacation for a while. The supplement, which has carried the most comprehensive editorial package in San Diego for more than a year, will appear as an editorial page in the regular Sentinel until enough $5 subscriptions are received to publish it independently.

Subscriptions for SCOPE are now being received, and when enough are tallied SCOPE will go back to work in full form. Mary Fishel's column, "From Everyone's Point of View," will appear regularly on Thursdays in the Society Section.

PARK ROAD BEGINS—City crews began working on Ocean Beach Park this week. This scene shows work on the Voltaire Avenue extension which will lead to a 307-car parking lot in the park. Another road will lead to the lot from Brighton. Paving is expected to begin in April. Spray Street will also be paved from West Point Loma Boulevard to Brighton.

Beach Offers Hot Pickings At Low Tide

If you happen to see someone scrambling around Ocean Beach during the daytime as though he's hunting grunion, relax, he's only hunting money.

That's right, coins of all denominations. According to one veteran, who does not want to be mentioned by name, pickings have been good on the beach lately.

He says whenever the sea is rough and cuts away at the sand, the coins begin to pop out. Some have been buried for years under as much as four feet of sand. On a good day a diligent searcher may find as much as seven or eight dollars in change.

How did they get there?

People lost them on the beach. The coins include Mercury dimes, and even an occasional silver dollar. Some of them, probably lost by foreign sailors, are from Peru, Netherlands, Mexico, Canada and the Orient.

The silver coins are black, and the copper ones are green, so it can be pretty tricky, and you've got to be right there as they are uncovered by the waves, or else it's too late.

False Teeth

Some other pretty interesting items also turn up. Such things as false teeth, rings, necklaces and medallions offer combers a little variety for their work.

During low tide, even watches and cigarette lighters turn up.

The big thing is to have a sharp eye and move fast, the old pro says.

Groups Hold Joint Meeting

A discussion of $170,000 slated for Ocean Beach Park which has been transferred to the capital improvement fund will highlight a joint meeting of Commerce and the Ocean Beach Town Council Monday night.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Margaret Franklin School on Santa Monica. The naming of Highway 109 after Ocean Beach and the development of Robb Field also will be discussed.

Need Help With Your Spring Cleaning?

The season is upon us, and housewives everywhere are preparing for the annual fun fest — Spring Cleaning. Mrs. Thomas Begley placed an ad in Thursday's Sentinel Classified for someone to do housecleaning once a week.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By DOCTOR JOHN J. FLYNN
Doctor of Chiropractic

Q—My wife reads your column all the time. She tells me that Chiropractic can help in my case. I've had pain in my lower back for years and there just isn't anything that can be done. I've tried everything but Chiropractic. Can you honestly tell me that Chiropractic can help?

A—The answer to your question is obvious. If you had a corrective Chiropractic adjustment for what sounds to me like a simple spinal misalignment in the lumbar section of your spinal column, you would probably have saved yourself years of painful suffering. I'd suggest that you listen to your wife for a change. More than likely there'll be a change for the better in your health.

DIZZY SPELLS

Q—I've been an ironworker for twenty years and I've only had one bad fall and that just recently. Lately I'm getting dizzy spells, though, and now I'm worried about climbing. Could this dizziness be the result of a spinal misalignment?

A—Very likely. But in your case, if there's also a shortness of breath or a ringing sensation in your ears when you suddenly change position, then I'd suspect high blood pressure as being the real problem. It's quite probable that, as a result of your recent fall, you displaced a spinal vertebra that is now pinching off the critical nerves that control the blood vascular system. Or, if not the blood vascular system, some other critical organ of the body. Whenever there's high blood pressure, there's some abnormal condition in your physical makeup. I'd have a spinograph taken to determine if you have a spinal misalignment. If this is the case, then Chiropractic can help.

EASY DISPLACEMENT

Q—Is it easy to displace a vertebra on the spinal column?

A—Too easy. Though the spinal column is a marvel of engineering, it is very vulnerable to stress and strain. What's so often called the backbone is actually 24 moveable segments or vertebrae bones that make up the spinal column. These vertebrae bones are piled one on top of the other like a stack of doughnuts. This stack of doughnuts. The spinal column is so constructed that it is much stronger in the horizontal plane. But, we walk erect with the spinal column in the vertical position. This is what causes most of our problems and why in animals the spine doesn't present many problems. Something as simple as a hearty slap on our back can displace a vertebrae bone causing it to press on or pinch a vital nerve that emits from the vertebrae opening on the spinal column. This nerve pressure is one of the major causes of disease and body malfunction. It's just good common sense to have regular Chiropractic checkups to make sure that there's no nerve interference anywhere in our body.

Doctor Flynn welcomes your letters on health problems. Mail your questions to his office at 6943 Linda Vista Road or telephone for an appointment to discuss your problem directly with him. Phone 278-2902

Happenings

In Politics and Government

By DAVID LEWIS

Congressman Lionel Van Deerlin's pronouncement to several local groups that President Johnson is in "serious political trouble" comes as no surprise—except possibly that it would be coming from Van Deerlin.

Van Deerlin spoke here several times this week and went so far as to say that despite the fact that he always has, and still does, support the President, he could work with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy or Sen. Eugene McCarthy if need be.

With the hopes of Kennedy and McCarthy at least optimistic, political columnists have been digging back to see when the last time was that an incumbent president didn't get the nomination again—when he wanted it.

The last such case was 84 years ago when Chester A. Arthur wasn't renominated in 1885 because of party infighting. Presidents John Tyler, Millard Fillmore, Franklin Pierce, and Andrew Johnson were also turned down for second terms.

The favorite example, though, has to be between the two Johnsons. One hundred years ago Andrew Johnson, also a Southerner, found his support in the North declining. Congress was demanding action on an issue that was splitting the nation, but the President stuck to his own policies.

Today President Johnson, according to one writer, has far more support than his predecessor, but Democrats are badly split by issues and personalities.

Like four of the five who lost the support of their parties, Johnson stepped into the Presidency from the vice president's post. Unlike any of the others, he won an election in his own right after he did.

"Today, too," said one columnist, "tradition, power, and habit have become entrenched firmly on the side of the President. So strong is the President, in fact, that pundits still rate him a heavy favorite despite his troubles."

Democratic Assemblyman Jim Bear, who was criticized by his colleague Pete Wilson earlier this week for using pictures of the two in such a way that it might appear to be an endorsement by Wilson of Bear, has agreed not to do it again.

Bear, in a letter to Wilson, said that in the future he would "specifically point out that while you, as Republican Minority Whip, could not and do not endorse me, that we do in fact work closely together in Sacramento." Bear also said he thought it important to point out to "our San Diego constituents that our San Diego delegation has an enviable record of bi-partisan cooperation." Bear also pointed out that 90 per cent of legislation in Sacramento is non-partisan.

Wilson had told Bear in a letter that he considered Bear's printing of a Wilson-Bear picture in a Bear newsletter "a most unfortunate breach of good taste and of simple courtesy to a fellow member." Wilson said he would not be endorsing Bear but would endorse whichever Republican opposes Bear in the general election in November.

SIDENOTES: A Los Angeles governmental and political consulting firm, Cerrell, Winner, and Associates, long-affiliated with Democratic politics in California, has been named to manage the Southern California campaign for the Democratic delegation supporting re-election of President Johnson. The firm has previously been involved in the campiagns of Johnson, former President Kennedy, Vice President Humphrey, and former Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Persons seeking signatures for California Republican presidential delegation pledged to any candidate except Ronald Reagan are seeking signatures in the county this weekend. Sufficient signatures must be in the hands of the Secretary of State by Friday. Two persons locally —Mrs. Elizabeth G. Hanna and Ray T. Smith, Jr.—are on the proposed delegation.

Death Waits For Some, If There's Money

Today, most heart attack victims recover from their first attack. Three quarters of those who do return to work.

Rheumatic fever can be virtually wiped out.

Many people suffering stroke can be rehabiliated to useful lives.

Recent studies have produced knowledge that now makes it possible to reduce the risk of heart attack.

New surgical techniques have saved lives once thought doomed. Surgeons now can implant artificial heart valves and transplant hearts.

"Since 1949, nearly $125 million Heart Fund dollars have been poured into the research that accomplished this progress against cardiovascular diseases," says Steve Oberg, Memorial Committee Chairman of the San Diego County Heart Association.

"The many memorial gift contributors who paid tribute to heart disease victims last month in the amount off $5,941.55, have the comfort in knowing that these contributions are used exclusively for research — to offer hope to the living," Oberg said.

Financial Report

By TOM MARTIN

Many high flying glamour stocks are down sharply in the market reaction of the past couple of months. In several cases the declines were triggered by disappointing earnings results— when expectations are geared too high, the comeback to reality can be hard and painful.

Investors are now much more critical about conglomerates, "science fiction" stocks, and other "imagination" issues. By the same token, some of these fallen angels are being far more reasonably valued and present rebound possibilities.

The following three issues are samples of some of the more prominent glamour stocks that have stumbled lately. In our opinion, speculative purchases are warranted in at least three cases as indicated — Gulf & Western, Polaroid, and Monogram.

Best Records

Gulf & Western has been among the most aggressive of the conglomerates in making acquisitions and also has compiled one of the best profit records. Gains in per share earnings — averaging over 35 per cent annually in the past decade—have come more from internal growth than from acquisitions. Profits in 1967 for the company as now constituted were about 45 per cent from manufacturing (largely auto parts and machinery), 22 per cent movies and TV shows, 12 per cent cigars, 8 per cent sugar, 7 per cent zinc, and 6 per cent wholesaling. The merger pace has slowed since the market decline and the proposed Armour acquisition was abondoned this year. However, profit growth should continue, with $5 likely for the July 1968 year. Allowing for full conversion of preferred stock — which is unlikely until the common dividend is doubled — the figure would be around $3.50.

Go-Go Funds

Recent weakness in Monogram's stock appears to be due in part to selling by "go-go" mutual funds. However, the annual rate of sales is now running close to $120 million vs. less than $20 million a year ago, and net per share was up 74 per cent in the first half of fiscal 1968 (June year). The bulk of this expansion reflects acquisitions in nonrelated fields, but there is a concentration on sophisticated products for uses in growing industries. Also, Monogram's original business (sanitation systems) is a source of strong profit gains. In common with all conglomerates, there is some degree of risk in attempting to grow simultaneously through internal development and by acquisition, but the company's impressive record to date indicates a bright future.

Good Potential

It appears certain that Polaroid will continue to show above-average earnings growth in the years ahead, although the rate is likely to be far less than the 60 per cent annual gains of the 1963-66 period. Profits were up "only" 20 per cent last year and the 1968 increase may be closer to 15 per cent, as the markets for Polaroid's color film and low priced cameras (both introduced 3-5 years ago) are now fairly well saturated. Also, recent new product announcements have been more in the nature of refinements of established lines than technological breakthroughs. Nevertheless, overall demand should continue strong and good growth potential exists in foreign markets and in the identification card field. The company's research capabilities offer promise for eventual success in new areas.

Annual Orchid Society Show Planned For Balboa Park In April

The 22nd Annual San Diego County Orchid Society Show will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Conference Building, Balboa Park, April 19, 20, 21.

Charles J. Day, show director, has announced "Orchid Fantasy" will be the show theme this year. Approximately 18 growers as well as many amateur growers will participate.

The displays will range from that of a single bloom to elaborate landscape displays with a special section reserved for flower arrangements by the San Diego Floral Arrangers Guild.

An orchid workshop will be conducted again this year by members of the Society in an effort to acquaint show visitors with some of the fundamentals of growing orchids at home. In addition, local commercial growers as well as experienced amateurs will be on hand to answer questions.

"How to" pamphlets and brochures from some of the West's largest commercial orchid companies will be distributed in an attempt to give the orchid hobbiest a "hand up" in his efforts to grow healthy plants producing prize winning blooms.

Drawings will be held at various times during the run of the show and a number of blooming size orchid plants will be given away. Orchid corsages will also be given away by ticket drawings every half-hour during the show.

Hundreds of individual orchid plants and flowers of exceptional quality and beauty will be entered in the numerous classes of competitive judging. Ribbons, medals and trophies will be awarded to the prize winners. The judging will be done by official judges from the American Orchid Society and the Cymbidium Society.

The Orchid Show will be open Friday evening, April 19, from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. In keeping with a tradition started a number of years ago, the opening will be a fund-raising benefit for the San Diego Botanical Garden Foundation, Inc. This nonprofit organization is attempting to raise money through public subscription for the construction of a garden center building which will be built in Balboa Park. The public is invited to attend this most worthwhile preview benefit. A ribbon-cutting ceremony with the Honorable Frank Gibson officiating will signal the beginning of this beautiful three day show.

On Saturday, April 20, the show hours will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday, April 21, doors will be open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The San Diego County Orchid Society welcomes anyone who is interested in orchids, whether he already has plants or not, to attend it's monthly meeting which is held the first Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the Floral Association Building in Balboa Park. The meetings feature talks by recognized authorities, colored slides and displays and discussion of orchid plants and flowers brought by the members. Refreshments are served and a raffle held for valuable orchid plants.

Further information about the Orchid Show or the Society may be obtained by contacting the Show Director, Charles J. Day, 939 Monserate Ave., Chula Vista, Calif. 92011. Phone 422-3708. Also anyone interested in joining the Society may obtain the necessary forms from the information booth at the show.

Jazz Dance Key Roles Auditioned

The San Diego Repertory Jazz Dance Company announces that auditions for key feature roles in their up-coming Summer Concert of the back-alley jazz opera Archy & Mehitable will be held this week at the San Diego School of Jazz Dance.

Under the direction of Raoul Appel, who staged the San Diego premiere of this production a year and half ago for the Cal-Western School of Performing Arts, Archy & Mehitable, will be presented June 8-9 in the International Ballroom of the El Cortez Hotel.

Auditioning this week only, all interested actors who have some background in dance, and can sing, are urged to contact Appel at the San Diego School of Jazz Dance, Tel.: 222-2722, for an audition appointment, with rehearsals commencing April 1.

Archy & Mehitabel originally opened on Broadway starring Carol Channing and Eddie Bracken, later reappeared on Broadway again, this time retitled Shinebone Alley, starring Eartha Kitt and Eddie Bracken, and in '54 was a TV-Special starring Tammy Grimes and Eddie Bracken.

43-Voice Choir Will Sing In Church Concert

Happy Days Again! (Except For H. Hoover)

Those 1920's "happy days are here again" this week at Little Caesar's in Point Loma and Caesar's Restaurant in Hillcrest.

It's Caesar's 40th birthday, and the first birthday of its strapping offspring, Little Caesar's. To celebrate, owner Bob Pastore has rolled back prices on his Italian specialties to the 1928 level—a reduction of more than 60 per cent.

Caesar's Hillcrest was opened by Caesar Pastore, uncle of the present owner in 1928. That was the year that Herbert Hoover was elected president, carrying 40 of the 48 states, and it was also the year that 15 nations signed the Briand-Kellogg treaty in Paris outlawing war, believe it or not.

The secret family recipes that have made Caesar's famous were introduced in San Diego in 1913 when Papa and Mama Pastore came here from Italy and opened the Fior d' Italia Restaurant at Fifth and "I" Street downtown.

Later Caesar was joined in ment of the Hillcrest restau- the ownership and manage- rant by Frank Pastore, Bob's father. Bob, a third generation restaurateur, took over upon the death of his father in 1960.

Little Caesar's, specializing in take-home service, opened in Point Loma last April 1.

Blowing Mind By Semaphore

John Logan will lecture on "The Use of Symbols in Expanding Consciousness" today at 7:30 p.m. at the California Parapsychology Foundation, 3580 Adams Ave., San Diego.

Logan's talk will be in the Western, not the Oriental, tradition, with emphasis on the ancient Kabalistic wisdom and the Tarot. He will also show slides on the Tarot.

Logan, a systems analyst and a member of the Foundation's Research Committee, was educated at Rice University, and the Universities of Houston, California, and Michigan.

David Dalton

Army Pvt. David L. Dalton, 20, son of Mrs. Letha L. Dalton, 10462 Park Ave., Santee, Calif., was assigned as an infantryman with the 2nd Infantry Division in Korea, Feb. 28. His father, George Dalton, lives at 1217 Oliver St.

Ship Race Planned For Next October

Mayor Frank Curran has endorsed a program of the Consular Corps of San Diego to invite all the countries of the world who have three-masted sailing-training ships to send them to San Diego for an International Race in October, 1969.

The program, called the Sailing Ships Armada, is one of the Consular Corps' projects for the San Diego 200th Anniversary, and it is their wish to promote international co-operation for this spectacular event.

The Sailing Ship Armada meet will be the world's first three-masted sailing ship race.

The Mayor also endorsed a second Consular Corps program to invite EVERY country in the world to send a training ship, or a ship-of-the-line to San Diego during the 1969 bicentennial celebration.

The Mayor will encourage the City Council to adopt the appropriate resolutions for these projects in the near future.

The announcement of the Sailing Ship Armada project will be made by Mr. R. C. A. Lubach, Vice-Consul of the Netherlands, and a member of the Board of Directors of the San Diego 200th Anniversary, Inc., at a luncheon hosted by Mayor Frank Curran for the San Diego Consular Corps on Wednesday, March 27th, 1968, at 12 noon, at the Atlantis Restaurant in Mission Bay.

Those countries which own three-masted sailing ships are: Argentina, Canada, Chile, Denmark, Germany, Great Britain, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, Norway, Portugal, and Spain..

Don't Be Fooled—Get Your Medicare Handled

"April first may be 'April Fool's Day" to most Americans," Franklin Maddison, Field Representative of the San Diego Social Security office stated, "but the 1967 Amendments to the Social Security Act make it an important date to many people who have Medicare coverage."

Mr. Maddison explained that the new amendments set a deadline for submitting bills for medical expenses incurred between July 1 and September 30, 1966.

"Bills for the first three months of the Medicare program must be filed before April 1, 1968 for payment to be made. Expenses incurred after September 30, 1966 may be sent in anytime in 1968, but March 31 is the last day to submit bills for the earlier period," Maddison said.

So far Medicare has paid on 28 million claims, he reported, but there are many people with old bills that have never been submitted for payment. "Perhaps the person thought that unless he sent them in before the end of 1966 it was too late, or maybe they found an old bill when adding up their expenses for tax returns," Maddison said, "whatever the reason for not filing before, there is still time."

All that is needed to request payment is the itemized bill (paid or unpaid) and a completed Request for Medicare Payment (Form SSA-1490).

The formrs and detailed information on this and other changes in the law are available at 3211 Fifth Avenue, San Diego, California 92103, or phone 293-5550.

Blacks, Whites Plain Scared

By HAYNES JOHNSON

DETROIT— In spite of every effort, Detroit is discovering how difficult it is to rebuild, and how hard it is to change radical attitudes. Instead of good-will and faith, the aftermath of the riots has brought suspicion and fear on both sides of the color line.

Take, for instance, this scene in the Negro area where the riots began last summer. A Negro militant leader, the Rev. Albert B. Cleage Jr., is sitting at his desk, under a portrait of a "black" Jesus.

"I think nothing constructive really is being done in Detroit," he says, "and there's all kinds of tension and fear in the suburbs. The black community feels there is a real danger of a white invasion this summer. I feel that way myself.

"Look at this. They're circulating thousands of these things in the suburbs."

He reached in a drawer and pulled out a handbill. At the top was the word: "ALARM." The leaflet, printed by the "Patriotic Party" in Dearborn, a Detroit suburb, warns that another riot "has already been planned." It gives this advice on how to prepare "survival plans":

"Have a gun and plenty of ammunition . . . at least a 30-day supply of food . . . a supply of drinking water must be stored, and first-aid equipment."

It also promises "to help you organize."

Cleage then addressed himself to the Negro response in his section of the city:

"Every black person I know has got a gun or is in the process of getting one."

While he was speaking, a secretary in another room was completing a typewritten appeal to Negroes.

"The danger to the black community is imminent, far more real to every black man and woman, to every child, than we can convincingly portray," the message read. "Twenty-four hour curfews and water curtailment are technics (sic) already in use on black communities within this nation. We don't propose anarchy; we don't propose an arms race; we don't advocate invading the suburbs, waylaying the police. But we do suggest preparation for the worst; providing, in advance, for some kind of order, for providing food, water and blood, for victims. Implementation of these plans takes time, money and organization."

Now listen to a white secretary who works in a downtown office and commutes from the suburbs.

Shocked By Shotgun

"I live in St. Clair Shores," she said, "and the feeling of the community is, I would say, apprehensive. I had a friend who went home one night and was shocked to see her parents learning to use a shotgun, 'just in case.' Everything is 'just in case' and 'if'—that's what you hear people saying. They're scared. Everybody has the same feeling. They don't want to go out at night. The fear's there. Even in the suburbs."

These are typical views and typical voices in Detroit these days. The city is engulfed in rumors—and the rumors are spreading fear and preparations for self-defense and reprisals.

Despite efforts on many fronts and the beginning of what appears to be a genuine commitment by leaders of industry to alleviate the plight of the city, the outlook is bleak. Among both whites and Negroes, one detects a sense of fatalism.

Compounding the problems is the fact that Detroit has been without newspapers for more than three months. The rumors, encouraged by extremists of both races, mushroom and feed on themselves.

City and suburban officials have been meeting in an attempt to calm passions. Detroit's Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh recently went on television to urge calmness. He announced the creation of a "rumor control center" where stories can be verified and accumulated information distributed.

Later, Cavanagh met with the mayors of the 40 suburban communities to discuss the current mood of tension and uneasiness. Now, the suburban mayors are talking of establishing their own version of a "rumor control center."

However effective that may prove to be, it merely underscores a basic fact: There have been no profound changes in the city.

That doesn't mean Detroit is ignoring its problems. Probably no American city is trying harder.

Since the July riots, a "New Detroit Committee" composed of leading industrial and community figures has been trying to rebuild and revitalize the city. There have

Editor's Potpourri

We don't hear a tremendous iot out of Washington about the "Great Society" these days Has the phrase gone the way of the Fair Deal, Square Deal, and New Frontier?

Not quite so. If the Vietnam war were over, we would surely see a revival of the Great Society concept with all its legislative trimmings. President Johnson believes the country is in a different mood today. He may even feel it's good politics to paint the grim picture. Certainly it leaves his critics with less room for maneuver.

The President's new somberness, together with that rallying-around which accompanies a military crisis, has upped his Gallup Poll standing. If now it would just boost the prospects of that proposed 10 per cent tax surcharge, it would hold the budget deficit to $8 billion instead of $21 billion.

—From the CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

A favorite gambit of those who oppose withholding of income taxes at the state level goes something like this:

"Sure it will catch some of the chiselers, but it encourages politicians to raise our taxes."

Unlike the chess play which entails a sacrifice in order to gain an advantage, that argument doesn't quite come off. Withholding does indeed catch chiselers, but it does not necessarily encourage politicians to boost your taxes.

Latest available estimates indicate that withholding would generate in excess of $80 million per year in extra revenue when fully effective. Withholding would also provide a sounder revenue structure by reducing the present gap between income and outgo. It would save most of the $12 million a year the state now pays for temporary borrowings.

The Times earnestly submits that the obvious advantages of withholding far outweigh the alleged disadvantages.

—From the LOS ANGELES TIMES.

"It Sorta Grabs You When You Realize That's Our Sparkling, All-New '68 Image, Doesn't It?"

Letters to Editor

In the Scope, Sunday, March 24, 1968, seven people were asked their opinion on how to keep peace within our cities between black and white. Since then several questions come to my mind.

To Judge Lindsley: Have you ever walked the streets of South-east San Diego at night, alone? Have you inquired why a Negro policeman prefers not to have a beat in that area? Or talked with the policeman on that beat? Or have you taken the time to visit the schools in that section, unannounced?

To Police Chief O. J. Roed: Does greater understanding and support of law enforcement apply only to the white people? Does it mean the police close their eyes to the black person that breaks the law?

To Albert Heisser: How long have you lived in San Diego? If the majority of the black people wish to assume responsibility, why in a High School where the white student is in the minority does a white student receive the vote in a democratic election?

To Vicar J. Larry Yoder: As a Christian I ask you, by what means did Christ use to rout out the "lawbreakers" in the Temple, did he stand with folded arms and say, "We must try and understand their situation." Have you, Vicar Yoder, visited our schools throughout the Southeast section of San Diego? Or rode the beat at nite with the policeman?

To Assistant Prof. P. S. Nichols: How long have you lived in San Diego? We who grew up here never knew what "racism" was until a few years ago; not until people from other cities came and implanted the idea in the minds of a few that were willing to listen. Both black and white were being swayed:

To Charles Mchezaji: Have you ever talked with a white person that had been stopped by a policeman for a misdemeanor of any kind and heard his side of the story and how discourteous the officer was to him? Because a man has come from the Military Service into the Police Force, does not mean that he has come to harass the Negro. Have you ever rode the beat with the policeman?

To Sheriff J. O'Connor: I agree that we don't have the same racial climate as other parts of the United States. For those of us that have lived here all of our lives, both black and white, we never knew the word "racism." The colored people that came here in the twenties and thirties settled where they wanted to, from La Jolla to the Mexican Border. They went to the same schools and no one told them which school they had to go to. There was law and order for both Negro and white and there was understanding. M.V.

Can't We Be Friends With Good Old Mafia?

By DON MACLEAN

WASHINGTON—By now, Eugene, Bobby, Dick, and Lyndon have itemized sufficiently for us most of the problems confronting the nation today.

What we're ready for are solutions. Unfortunately, I'm afraid our current crop of Presidential candidates is more adept at problem-spotting than it is at problem-solving.

But perhaps creative thinking is best left to columnists (those godlike creatures), rather than to politicians. For instance, I could put an end to most of the petty robberies, simple assaults, muggings, rapes, etc., within a few weeks.

The first thing is to change the Justice Department's strategy. It now spends most of its time attacking organized crime, when it is the disorganized crime which bothers the man in the street.

He is more concerned about getting hit on the head and robbed than he is about the Mafia infiltrating the loan business or whatever.

During World War II we made an ally of the Mafia. We actually called on Lucky Luciano's patriotism and asked him to stop thefts and wildcat strikes on the New York waterfront.

He passed the word and things ran smoothly throughout the war. Thugs weren't afraid of the cops, but they didn't want to mess with Lucky Luciano.

Up To Date

We should make some similar approach to the Mafia today. The government might call a meeting at Appalachia, N. Y., and point out to the syndicate bosses that muggings, pointless killings, bus-driver stickups, etc., are giv-

Harris Poll

Bobby Is Almost There!

By LOUIS HARRIS

In nationwide pairings among a cross section of all voters, New York Sen. Robert Kennedy presently runs ahead of former Vice President Richard Nixon, 44 to 39% and finishes on top of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller by an even more commanding 43 to 34%. President Johnson also shades Nixon by 41 to 39% and finishes in a head heat with Rockefeller, 39 to 39%.

By contrast, Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy as the Democratic nominee loses both to Nixon 34 to 43% and to Rockefeller, 35 to 36%.

These figures are with former Alabama Gov. George Wallace in the race as a third-party candidate. Wallace draws from 10 to 19%, depending on the opposition.

Other significant findings from this survey are:

In the first reading since he said he would not be an active candidate, Rockefeller's standing with the voters has slipped dramatically. Three weeks ago he was 7 points ahead of the President. Now all 7 points have disappeared.

The main reason Kennedy runs a stronger race against Rockefeller than against Nixon is that the vote for Wallace as a third-party independent diminishes to a low of 10% in a Kennedy-Nixon contest Clearly, many potential Wallace voters would switch to Nixon to try to stop Kennedy.

By the same token, in a McCarthy-Rockefeller pairing, the Wallace vote soars to a high of 19%. The reason is that many Southern voters and conservative Northern Republicans would prefer Wallace to either McCarthy or Rockefeller.

Here are the results of the first pairings with Kennedy pitted against the two leading Republicans:

KENNEDY VS. NIXON

	Total Voters Per Cent
Kennedy	44
Nixon	39
Wallace	10
Not Sure	7

KENNEDY VS. ROCKEFELLER

	Total Voters Per Cent
Kennedy	43
Rockefeller	34
Wallace	15
Not Sure	8

Against Nixon, Kennedy wins by a small margin in the Midwest and by a sizable 54 to 38% in the West. He takes the Negro vote, 83 to 3%, and the Catholic vote, 53 to 34% Nixon edges Kennedy in the East, however, and defeats Kennedy among white voters and Protestants.

Here are the latest pairings of President Johnson against Nixon and Rockefeller:

L. B. J. VS. NIXON

	Late March Per Cent	Early March Per Cent
Johnson	41	39
Nixon	39	39
Wallace	13	12
Not Sure	7	10

L B. J. VS. ROCKEFELLER

	Late March Per Cent	Early March Per Cent
Johnson	39	34
Rockefeller	39	41
Wallace	15	14
Not Sure	7	11

Rockefeller's biggest slippages from the pre- and post-announcement showings were among young people, independent voters and those who live in the East. Many expressed disappointment that he had not seen fit to go out and fight for the nomination directly in a confrontation with Richard Nixon.

McCARTHY VS. NIXON

	Total Voters Per Cent
McCarthy	34
Nixon	43
Wallace	14
Not Sure	9

McCARTHY VS. ROCKEFELLER

	Total Voters Per Cent
McCarthy	35
Rockefeller	36
Wallace	19
Not Sure	10

Against McCarthy and Rockefeller, Wallace would run ahead in the South, would receive 23% of the low-income white vote in the North, would win 27% of the vote in rural areas and 21% of the voters 50 years old and over.

A Conservative View

I Was Ruined By A Computer

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The Humble Oil and Refining Company maintains its Esso credit card records in a highly computerized operation at Bala-Cynwyd, Pa. Toward the end of January, a man named W. M. Cashman was working on the "K" section of those records.

Mr. Cashman's task on this particular day was to cull those accounts so badly delinquent that drastic action would have to be taken toward their collection. His eye caught an item of $7.05 that was months overdue; his eye also caught the name of "Kilpatrick." He noted these facts on his tablet.

Then, he says contritely, he must have been interrupted—a telephone call, perhaps; someone asked a question. He does not recall. But his attention flickered.

When he returned to the unfinished entry, he looked at the ledgers and wrote "James J." in front of "Kilpatrick." Then he added address and credit card number. Metaphorically, a switch had been turned to On. A "bit" had been dropped in the memory banks of future computers.

As a general proposition, columnists ought not to write of their personal problems. Permit an exception. For the flickering eye of Mr. Cashman is related to a study now being conducted by a subcommittee of House Government Operations.

The study deals with the recording, retrieval, and dissemination of personal data; it is concerned with computers, and with privacy. Mr. Cashman had the wrong "Kilpatrick." The Kilpatrick of the $7.05 was some other Kilpatrick, unknown, unrelated, somewhere else in the country.

On February 7, a coldly peremptory notice arrived in my mail. It came from the Brook Adjustment Service in Brookline, Mass. "This account has been listed with our office for immediate collection," said the printed notice. "This is a demand for payment in full, today." If such payment were not made, "further procedure" was implied. And do not fold, staple, or mutilate this card.

In 30 minutes, I tracked down Mr. Cashman and had him on the wire. It was not, perhaps, his happiest day. It was a mistake, he said. He was sorry. Okay. But what had this done to my credit reputation? What had his error set in motion?

It turned out that when the $7.05 memorandum went off to Massachusetts for collection, a copy routinely went also to the Associated Credit Bureaus of America in Houston.

The ACBofA, as it is known, is composed of 2,068 local credit bureaus throughout the United States. They maintain dossiers on 96 million Americans. Last year they provided more than 100 million credit reports to 365,000 subscribing merchants, banks, and other granters of credit. The local affiliate, the Credit Bureau, Inc., maintains dossiers on two million present and former residents of the Washington area. (It corrected my own credit record on March 11.)

In recent testimony before the House committee, Robert K. Pinger, discussed the approaching nationwide computerization of credit records, and opposed "any legislation that would hamper efforts of credit bureaus to centralize information."

Mr. Pinger is general manager of the Credit Bureau of Greater Houston, which is pioneering (with Dallas) in an advanced system of computerized data retrieval. By mid-summer, the two cities will be "on the line." Because credit data is ideally suited for computer input, other cities soon will follow their lead. The computers will be linked to each other.

This will make possible the virtually instantaneous filing, retrieval, and disclosure of information relating to the financial responsibility "and character" of every person who makes use of credit. Computer symbols will reflect not only how rapidly a man pays his bills, but also data relating to bankruptcy, garnishment, forced collection, divorce, liens, law suits, indictments, convictions, income, marital status, dependents, and the like.

So long as the information is accurate, fine. An efficient credit system is vital to the economy; and a man who seeks credit reasonably may be asked to answer such questions.

But suppose a clerk's eye flickers? Suppose the symbols are wrong? Pondering these problems, the House committee has set an alarm bell swinging. We ought to heed it closely. It tolls for us all.

Yes, Madame President

With color and creed now proved no bar in the election booth, the specter of sex may be the next ghost to be exorcised from the sacred halls of the White House.

Now that every minority group has had its way with the world, it's about time that the numerical majority was finally recognized as a force to be counted in the country's future.

Electing a female to the role of Chief Executive would be final proof that the country had at last committed itself totally to the 10th Century in the matter of sex, as well as space, social justice and sin.

It might even move us out of the wake of such other backward countries as India, where Mrs. Indira Gandhi has been ruling the roost for a number of years with no obviously painful effects.

While it is admittedly too late to overtake the lead of those already in the race, THIS is the year we could have used a candidate of the female persuasion to lend a little style, maturity and charm to what promises to be a total mess before it's over.

After all, the candidates—real, imagined or just wishful thinkers — are all acting like a bunch of gals at a hen been meetings and speeches, studies and task forces, attempts to bind up the community while uncovering grievances and drafting proposals for future action.

The committee itself has had a pragmatic, hard-headed approach. It has avoided self-promoting rhetoric; it has not promised the millennium. It emphasizes specific programs and achievements, rather than generalities.

At the same time, it has worked closely with the major companies in the Detroit area. The figures it reports do show some progress: 50,483 unskilled workers, some 10,000 of them "hard-core" unemployed; hired since August; promulgation of anti-bias programs in corporations; new recreational projects, new hiring-training programs, new teaching techniques.

There have been setbacks, too. Earlier this month, for instance, the New Detroit Committee announced proudly that "Detroit area economic growth has resulted in 28,400 more people working today than were employed a year ago."

But in the same period the number of unemployed had increased by more than a thousand. The paradoxical figure is attributed to "new entrants into the labor market." Thus Detroit, like other cities, is in the position of taking two steps back for every one forward.

The most impressive aspect of the official effort can never be measured by statistics or programs. It is in the attitudes of the people trying to deal with the problems. They are uniformly candid about the present—and the future. No one tries to paint a pleasant picture; no one pretends to have found "the solution." Each sees himself as a small part of a long struggle.

"We spent a good many months trying to find a panacea," says Richard B. Johnson, a businessman on loan to the committee. "We were trying to find instant success, to solve the problem.

"We wasted a fantastic amount of time. I think we're more realistic now. What we have before us is a mountain and we're trying to shovel it away with a teaspoon—and there are just as many people with teaspoons shoveling the other way.

Just Plain Scared

"More and more we are coming to feel—or at least I am coming to feel—that the great unheard-of mass of Negroes is just plain scared. They are caught in a bind between the revolutionary blacks, the militant blacks, and the racist fringe in the white suburbs. Their reaction is fear.

"We don't have any new message to the Negro community. What can we say to them? Make them more promises? They've had 400 years of promises. And until we can go to them and say 'here is what we have been able to work out with you,' we should keep quiet. What we're trying to do right now is establish one message with the white community—that it's hell to be born black.

"If we can ever get that across—if we can ever get across the hopelessness, frustration and futility of being born black—maybe then we'll be able to make progress."

More immediately, the committee is planning a campaign "to cool it" in the suburbs. Ads for television and suburban newspapers are being written in the hope they will stop the spiral of fear, rumor and possible violent action.

"Arm yourself," read the bold letters of one proposed ad. "You may get a blue ribbon." Then, in smaller type, comes the kicker: "posthumously."

The fact is, however, that gun sales have more than doubled since last year. In Dearborn, the city's parks and recreation department is offering a free course in pistol shooting for housewives.

The ladies are taking aim not at bulls-eye targets. They are firing at silhouettes of men. At present there is a waiting list of 500 for the course. Militia-type meetings are being held in American Legion halls. Police departments are arming themselves with new and more deadly weapons.

In some of these communities there seems to be a "let's-have-it-over-with" feeling. In others, offficials are attempting to allay fears—but in the process they may be confirming the belief that something ominous lies ahead.

Recently, for instance, residents of Southfield, a white suburb, received a mimeographed message "from your police department," signed by Police Chief Milton G. Seckett. It began:

"There are many rumors circulating in the Detroit Metropolitan Area with reference to possible disturbances in the coming months. Many of these rumors are purely of the 'scare' variety with no real basis in fact. Other stories mingle fact and fiction so thickly that it is most difficult to separate the two. Unfortunately, these types of stories become distorted, enlarged, and more and more alarming as time goes by."

Three Point Program

After assuring the citizens that "our police officers are ready to take any and all measures which might be necessary to deal effectively with any foreseen and/or unforseen occurrence," the statement urges a three-point program.

1. Rely on and cooperate with the police department; 2. Remain calm; 3. Don't buy guns.

"If you feel the need for greater protection in your house," it says, "buy a dog. Please don't over-react."

These activities are occurring in a general atmosphere of ill-will, what one man summed up as "a complete frustration with the whole country — Vietnam, taxes, riots, unions, strikes, the President, the hippies, the whole thing." The mood is negative, and reactionary.

An incident in Grosse Point expressed part of that feeling. Grosse Point, one of the most affluent of American suburbs, always has prided itself on its fine school system. But in a recent school referendum the voters overwhelmingly rejected every proposal put before them. Another side of the same emotional undercurrent was seen when the Detroit City Council flatly turned down a gun registration law.

For their part, Negroes seem to feel even more threatened and frustrated than before.

"Take a look and see what you see and tell me if people can live this way in the United States of America in the 20th Century and not be mad." said a Negro friend while pointing out an area of dilapidated housing in the riot area. "That's the whole thing, man."

Much As Before

For Negroes, life goes on much as before. The rubble from the riots has been removed, but the apartments and stores still bear the mark of smoke. Here and there are the burned-out buildings and boarded stores. Sometimes you pass an entire block that has been leveled. The ground is combed—and bare. Negroes sardonically point to what they call "riot architecture"—bricks replacing glass windows.

Unlike Watts, though, a section that gives off a feeling of the morgue, of stillness and lethargy, Detroit's Negro section looks, on the surface, basically as it did before July. It is only in talking to people that you detect a significant difference.

Rev. Cleage, whose views represent an important, if perhaps minority, segment of the black population, discussed the change in attitudes among Negroes on a television show here not long ago. For a while, he says, Negroes believed that white men "really meant well, and that it was just a matter of time until everything worked out."

That is no longer true, he says.

"The white man's actions have led black people today not to believe that things are going to work out. The more things that the white man does indicate to more and more black people that the enmity is real, that the white man hates black people.This drives black people into the very cohesiveness that white people are so afraid of."

Of the months ahead, Cleage says:

"It is my honest opinion if there is a major disturbance in Detroit this summer, it will come from the white community. But the black community will defend itself."

When it comes to that question, most whites and Negroes with whom one speaks are cautious. They hope, they will say, that each side realizes the futility of violence.

One man likened the situation to a nuclear confrontation between Russia and America. "I think each side recognizes the fantastic destructive capacity the other possesses and that it's in the interests of survival not to start anything." But everyone recognizes the possibility that the small, unstable fanatical fringe is capable of touching off a catastrophe.

It would be a distortion to say that officials have lost faith in themselves—or no longer have the will to continue working for change. If only from enlightened self-interest, business leaders seem committed as never before to programs aimed at improving housing, education and job opportunities for Negroes.

The Same Frustrations

"Detroit faces exactly the same frustrations that Los Angeles faced after Watts," says Kent Mathewson, president of the Metropolitan Fund, Inc., and coordinator of the New Detroit Committee. "Perhaps we've been able to move more quickly on jobs, because of the kind of industrial base we have here.

"I would say the one unique thing we have done — other than the creation of jobs—is to recognize that the solution does not entirely lie in the fields of housing, education, jobs. Really, it is the relationship between the suburban white communities and the inner city that is basic."

Mathewson and others say they believe industry is in the fight to stay. But in the process they themselves are learning some of the limits of their power and influence—and some of the problems of democracy.

Last fall, for example, the New Detroit Committee placed its influence squarely behind the passage of fair housing legislation. The members felt so strongly about the need for such a law that they lobbied personally and forcefully before the Michigan Legislature.

On two occasions, a blue-ribbon group made special plane flights to Lansing to talk with individual legislators. Among those who made the trips were Henry Ford, James Roche, board chairman of General Motors; and Walter Reuther, of the United Auto Workers.

"It was the damnedest conglomeration of power you ever saw in your life," one participant recalls. "It was business power, labor power, money power."

Four days before Christmas, the State Legislature voted on the fair housing bill. It was defeated, 55 to 47.

Coast Guard Enlists Dierks

Seaman Recruit Lyle R. Dierks, USCG, son of Mrs. Richard F. Dierks of 4379 Taos Drive has been enlisted into the United States Coast Guard for four years of active duty by the Coast Guard Recruiter in San Diego.

He reports for eight weeks of basic training at the Coast Guard Recruit Training Center in Alameda, Calif. During basic training the new recruit will become familiar with the Coast Guard's mission and learn his new responsibilities as part of the nation's oldest continuing seagoing service.

The primary mission of the Coast Guard is the protection of life and property at sea using search and rescue aircraft and cutters.

party already. The real thing might be an improvement.

There are advantages to having women in the running that perhaps the electorate has not yet considered.

First of all, we would be spared the interminably run of primary battles that seem to make an election year last forever. No woman in her right mind would even consider heading into New Hampshire in March, plowing around in drifts to her coccyx bone, and blowing her wigs in some of the wildest winter available, to win approval from an electorate that has only managed to be with a winner less than half the time in 68 years!

If she changed her mind, she would say so, instead of dressing it up as a reassessment disguised as a second coming.

If she came to her press conferences in full make-up, she would at least look normal, instead of just nervous.

And her maturity could be measured by the sort of practical yardstick no man is required to match. In an age dedicated to eternal youth for women only, any female who actually admitted to being over 35 and eligible for the job, would have faced the facts of life and come to terms with them. She would not have to be buttered up, flattered, conned, or agreed with just to be agreeable.

ing crime a bad name. We might ask them to do what they could to stop it.

In return, the government could promise to view philosophically some of the syndicate's little problems in Las Vegas and/or even look kindly at some of their more questionable tax returns. (After all, if Bobby Kennedy and Bill Fulbright can talk about making a deal with Ho Chi Minh, just to end the war, certainly a deal with the Mafia to end crime is not unthinkable.)

How would it work? Well, the Mafia would let it get around — no more petty crime, or else. And, while the police seldom know who the lawbreakers are, the criminal grapevine usually does. Should some hoodlum kill a cabbie for $4 or something, he would be dealt with harshly.

Soon we would have no vicious, non-Mafia-type crime. Fear and, in some cases, stark terror would have wiped it out. I have equally brilliant solutions for other problems, but this will do for today. Are there any questions?

John C. Pelanconi deducts $2,500 a year on his income tax for his retirement.

Here's the scoop.

John took advantage of our new savings plan for the self-employed. He is putting $208 per month into his retirement account and every dollar is tax deductible. He can expect a fund of nearly $56,000 when he retires.

If you own your own business or practice, you can deduct 10% (up to $2,500 a year) for retirement savings. But you must put the money in a Government-approved plan. Like ours.

With our plan your funds are fully insured because as one of the eleven insured savings and loan associations that make up Financial Federation we can offer account insurance up to $165,000. (Accounts in one name at each of the eleven associations are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.)

High earnings build your retirement fund faster. At our current annual rate of 5%, compounded daily, John's savings of $208 a month will build up to $55,875.27 in just fifteen years. But this is John's plan. You may want to retire sooner. Or save less each month. We're here to tailor a plan that's right for you. But just note one other thing before you clip the coupon.

Every dollar your funds earn while growing is tax-exempt. You only pay income tax when you withdraw from the fund, or when you retire, and at that time your tax rate will probably be considerably lower. (On regular passbook savings accounts you pay tax on your earnings annually.)

Now, the coupon. Just clip and mail us the coupon. Or come in to our office.

Strictly Sports

By BOB LEBO

The big excitement in San Diego sports circles last week was the announcement that The Big 'E', Elvin Hayes, signed to play basketball next season with the San Diego Rockets.

Bob Breitbard, who successfully conducted the negotiations with Elvin, not only gained a Super Star for the Rockets but he just about killed off the rival American Basketball Association (ABA).

Whatever price Breitbard paid for Elvin, it will be worth it and more. The interest and principal should accrue before next season is too far along the way.

Some followers of sports believe that the signing of Elvin could mean that the Rockets will boost their attendance at least 2,000 per game.

Hayes is proof that all the gold in Texas doesn't glitter. He said the calibre of play in the National Basketball Association (NBA) was one of the deciding factors in his deciding to sign with the Rockets. He wanted to play against the best and today the best in basketball means the NBA.

There is no doubt that Hayes will adjust rapidly to the NBA style of play and the Rockets will own a property that will rank in value with Wilt Chamberlin, Bill Russell, Oscar Robertson, Elgin Baylor and Jerry West to mention a few.

PHYSICALLY STRONG

He has all the physical equipment necessary and he has ability that hasn't really been tapped. Hayes has great potential and San Diegans will see this young man develop into as great a pro star as he is a college star.

He dominated the collegiate game the past two years for Houston and it was a surprize that Breitbard literally stole Hayes from right under the "Eyes of Texas."

Hayes measures 6-9½ and weighs 235 pounds. He's extremely strong and probably has the largest pair of hands in basketball today. He can jump and run with the best. He's a good shooter and rebounder. In plain words he has the tools and every basketball team in the country would have liked to get a crack at signing him, but it was San Diego's "Luck of the Draw" that gave Breitbard the opportunity to negotiate.

Hayes in signing automatically gave up an opportunity to play in the Olympic games next October in Mexico City, but no one can really blame him for going for some of Breitbard's money insteal.

FINANCIAL SECURITY

Here is a young Negro from the South who has established financial security at an age when most college graduates are dreaming about making $100,000 a year. In fact, the percentage who will ever reach that salary figure for a year will be few.

But this is the age when it pays to have talent and if you're a seven footer to boot, you can't miss making big money.

Most every good basketball team today must have an outstanding Negro player. This past season proved how important this was for San Diego, which lacked this commodity. In Hayes the Rockets have a cager who will prevent the opposition getting cheap baskets, and with John Block and Don Kojis up front and Henry Finkel and Tony Kimball ready to step in at a moment's notice, the rebounding figures should jump substantially.

Basketball fans can hardly wait to see the Rockets play next year and the fellows selling season tickets for 1968-69 will find their job a lot easier.

Hayes will not be the only new face on the roster because the Rockets will get several more draft picks, but he's the most important to San Diego and the NBA.

Surf Scene

By DOUG SMITH
City Surfing Coordinator

UPCOMING CONTESTS — Next weekend will be the big third annual Easter Surfing Contest in Ocean Beach and this meet is open to any surfer. No late entry fee will be charged and applications are available at all local surfboard shops.

Another contest is also slated for next weekend, a class 3A and 4A contest for rating points in Santa Cruz. This contest may rob Ocean Beach of a few top name surfers.

An April 29-30 date has been set for a Western Surfing Association District Six contest in Pacific Beach, sponsored by George's Surf Shop.

RECENT MEETS—Las Olas Surf Club pulled a major upset last weekend, beating Newport Beach, 176-165, at San Miguel Las Olas advisor Chuck Mason said surf conditions were ideal for the 40 competing surfers.

SPECIAL EVENTS — The Easter Surf Contest in Ocean Beach has added a Belly Board event to its busy schedule. It will be open to any club or individual and membership in the WSA is not required.

Phil Castagnola has accepted the position of competition director to District Six. Phil has surfed for many years and knows the sport of surfing well. He should do a fine job for the local district.

SURFING CONDITIONS — The high for today will be a 4.0 reading at 10:36 a.m. and a low of 1.3 is expected at 4 p.m. For a North County report, call 753-6221.

PERSONALITY OF THE WEEK, Judy Dibble — With eight years of surfing behind her, Judy is considered one of the finest girl surfers on the West Coast. She has surfed almost every spot up up and down the coast, as well as Mexico and Hawaii. She favors Sunset Cliffs locally, but likes Chung's Reef in Hawaii when she can get there.

Judy is a Triple A member of the Western Surfing Association and feels that she is getting the ultimate in performance from her new eight-foot, 17-pound Hobie/Joyce Hoffman model surfboard. She is eagerly awaiting the upcoming local contests.

Judy sees surfing as a fine all-around sport and feels that the recent surfing fad has diminished and those who now surf are the hard core surfers who really enjoy the sport. Many who have been detrimental to the sport have dropped out, she feels, and the image of surfing has improved greatly because of this.

Judy attends Mesa College where she majors in social science and plans a teaching career.

KOMET TRACKSTERS WIN

Undefeated Chiefs Face Dons Tuesday

By LARRY LITTLEFIELD

Those undefeated Chieftains and a band of record setting renegades will battle in a top Western League baseball attraction Tuesday.

With Kearny home free in a track race that was over before it started, baseball is causing most of the excitement as five teams—Clairemont, Mission Bay, Madison, Point Loma and University—are involved in one heck of a fight.

That's right, University.

You may have scratched out the Dons in consideration as a contender. It was not hard. But better write them back in. That 21-6 romp over Kearny Tuesday just set a Western League record for runs and hits (26) in a single game.

And get this—all 26 Don hits were singles. There wasn't one extra base hit recorded for Uni.

That massacre, coupled with Clairemont's 10th straight victory, sets the stage for a Chieftain-Don meeting Tuesday on the Clairemont diamond at 3 p.m.

Meanwhile, Mission Bay tied with the Dons for second place at 2-1, hosts La Jolla, and Madison will visit Kearny in hopes of finding fragments of a Komet ball club.

All is not gloomy at the Stephen Watts campus, however, as Kearny's track team, as expected, took what may have looked to some like it was going to be a close meet and turned it into a 32-point victory. The Komets rolled over Clairemont, 75-43, to virtually wrap up their second straight championship.

Another Western League track meet, a make-up meet, is slated tomorrow when La Jolla travels to Point Loma at 2:45 p.m. The Pointers are in the thick of a three-way battle for second place in Western League track.

The Pointers, Clairemont and Madison are all 2-1.

Point Loma's baseball team finally snapped out of a king sized slump and all it took was a game on their own field and a mighty wallop by John Balaz.

Point Loma had not scored more than one run in seven previous games, but Balaz's first inning homerun produced two and the Lomans went on to beat Madison, 3-1, behind Larry Luxenburg's three-hitter.

Clairemont got an even better performance from junior hurler Tommy Dodd and switch hitting centerfielder Richie Molina.

Dodd fired a one-hitter in stopping previously unbeaten Mission Bay, 4-0, and Molina banged out four hits in four times at bat, including a homerun, a double and a pair of singles.

Molina's four hits were half of the Chieftain output and the homer made for a close game until Clairemont erupted for three sixth inning runs.

Dodd, somewhat wild in walking seven, had his bid for a no-hitter spoiled by Steve Davis in the sixth inning when the Buc third baseman dunked a single to right.

While Molina, perhaps the finest defensive outfielder in the league, was having a perfect day at the plate, University's Tom Daniels was going five-for-six in another outstanding performance.

When the Dons exploded for 10 runs in the second inning and took a 13-0 lead, Coach Bull Trometter pulled Don ace Greg Tomzyck, who will probably start against Clairemont and Pat Casey Tuesday.

The Chieftains are in the midst of their longest win streak ever, having bettered a string of nine straight by the 1959 championship squad.

"We're trying not to think too much about the streak, just about the next game," Clairemont coach Ernie Beck said. "In this league, every game can be tough. Look at University. They've come up with a fine ball club and they'd like to be the ones to beat us first. There's just no let up.

The way things are going, the Chiefs can start Dodd and Casey and relieve one or the other with Rick Casey or Zach Arnold and still be in good shape.

Kearny's track team, rising to the occasion of some better competition for a change, came up with first place finishes in all but two events, including twin wins by hurdler Dennis Downie and quarter miler-long jumper Seneca Godwin.

The most spectacular wins of the afternoon, however, were a fantastic 43.5 school record smashing 440-yard relay and a great 3:28.0 clocking in the mile relay.

Madison won every event in its route of Mission Bay, but the times weren't nearly as spectacular.

Caliente Routers Run In Houston 'Cap Today

AGUA CALIENTE—Routers have the distinction of closing out the first half of the season at Caliente today when they leave the gate for a mile and one-eighth gallop in the fetaured Houston Invitational Handicap.

At the mid-point of the six-months' semester, Caliente will mark the weekend which traditionally introduces the spring and summer portion of the campaign by changing its first post time from 11:30 a.m. to 12 noon. The new schedule will prevail for each racing day until decreasing daylight sets in next fall.

The Houston Handicap is designed for higher class claimers and allowance horses, and no less than 16 have been extended invitations by racing secretary H. E. "Buck" Hopkins.

From the list of candidates, it shapes up as a well-balanced contest, with the distinction of drawing high weight resting among Notoriety, Southern Host and Perfect Blend. Notoriety could get the top impost off his effort of last Saturday when he closed well to finish second behind the highly-regarded Costa Brava while going a flat mile, and also warranting consideration are Perfect Blend and Southern Host.

Among others are Kentucky's Ball, who picked up a set of brackets Sunday when a foul claim in his behalf was upheld, and Turks Classic, a beaten favorite on the same card. Sprint Cars Go Today In Top Speedway Race

All five who took part in the blanket finish in El Centro last month will be on hand for Cajon Speedway's C.R.A. Sprint car race this afternoon at 2 p.m.

Winner and point leader Bob Hogle was rtaiiled by less than 20 yards by Bob Cleberg, local Dick Fries, Paul Jones, and Rick Goudy. All are in the top 17 in the point standings.

Shaping up as one of the best races to take place in San Diego County, there is a good chance for a local driver to run off with the honors. Local racers have long been top competitors on the coast but with new machines and an asphalt track to gain experience, this could be the year. Blessed with youngsters and a long list of veteran drivers, San Diego is coming into its own in auto racing.

Young drivers that are fast climbing to fame behind the wheel include Don Hamilton and Carl Adams of El Cajon. Veterans that can be depended upon to give the hot dogs of CRA some local trouble include Dick Fries, Bob McCoy, Les Crawford, Herby Crawford and Ace Duncan.

The track will be full of competition with Bob Hogle, Buena Park, Ned Spath, Ojai, Bud Gilbert, Santa Ana and Billy Wilkerson of El Monte. Included in a big field will be Frank Secrist of Oildale, who has a record of five wins and three seconds in eight races at Cajon's 3/8 mile aval.

The British Broadcasting Company has featured her many times and she has had the honor of playing before the Queen.

She has sung roles in Lucia Di Lammermoor, Mozart's "The Magic Flute," Rigoletto by Verdi and Handel's Oratorio, The Messiah was made easy since she comes from a musical family. She also had her own radio program for six years.

Hats Get Nod of Fashion

"I missed my appointment at the beauty salon."

Until recently, such emergencies were the reason for a hat wardrobe—which usually consisted of one hat. But fashion trends are changing all that. Now, a hat wardrobe — and a varied one — comes close to being a must.

From the soft and fluid looks of the Thirties to the romance of fit and flare, from the classic to the jaunty, the silhouettes of spring find their counterparts in hats, as curving, clean-lined brims, supple berets and sporty-to-Flowered hat fashions help create the total look.

Right-now hat flattery pulls together each element of a fashion ensemble, with ease. A skirt, shirt and skinnied-down sweater vest — calls for a cloche or beret.

A ruffled and romantic ensemble seems all the prettier for the dip, swirl and swoon of a big-brimmed hat. And a jaunty bolero suit, with a flirty skirt, can benefit from a safari, Western or Spanish-influence hat style.

Fresh and feminine brims frame the pretty face of spring in many ways. There are flipped-back brims, oversized floppy brims, crisp and rigid brims. Rollers, sailors, other classic brimmed styles opt for clean lines, in novelty weaves and textures.

Deep cloches, side-tilted berets and brimmed profile hats all play their part in the Thirties look — a total look that's not totally serious. The lanky, fluid silhouette is spiced and saved from sloppiness by a bit of tongue-in-cheek humor, and hats, too, are in a smiling mood.

Sou'wester, safari hats, Canadian Mounty and Texas Ranger styles add a crisp note to the feminine look. Chin straps, bit of hardware are signatures here.

The panama hat, small deer-stalker hat or giant scoop hat go sporty—for real outdoor action or for sunny leisure.

Flowered hats, a spring staple, turn now from merely pretty to pow looks, with the accent on femininity. They hug the head, take profile turns or branch out into brims.

Evening calls for a bit of hat whimsy in crystal, ribbon and net. Loops of sequinned black velvet are placed at the back of the head, behind a mass of curls. Crystal and beads on a velvet headband hold back a waterfall of gentle waves.

Dance Talk Slated By La Jolla Club

Olga Maynard, author-lecturer, will interrupt a tour of the West Coast with ballerina Diane Adams to speak at a 2 p.m. meeting of La Jolla Woman's Club Monday at the clubhouse.

Her talk will be the second on the performing arts. Earlier she spoke on contribution made by San Diego women to arts and culture in the community.

The speaker's discussion and demonstration of classical dancing will be entitled "On the Light Fantastic Toe." Demonstrating aspects of ballet technique will be students from the Kaliskis School of Classical Ballet in San Diego. Dancers will include Colleen Hendry, Valerie Regsburgh, Deleah Shafer and Carla Jebe.

Nadezda Kaliskis, teacher, will also be present. The dancers will be accompanied by Mrs. Ann Jobe at the piano.

Mrs. Maynard represents the Ford Foundation Scholarship Program under which the dancers study. She is currently studying the regional effects on ballet in America and will include her findings in a book on the history of the School of American Ballet.

Special guest at the meeting will be Mrs. Bruce M. Kelley, widely known as Jillana of the New York Ballet. She is staff representative of the American Ballet Scholarship Program..

Mrs. Martin Van de Visse will introduce the guest speaker. Miss Loma Cavanaugh is chairman of the tea committee. Pouring will be Mmes. William H. Wilson, Russell McEwen, Aspasia Menas and James D. Deane.

World Beauty Queen To Model Swimwear

She will model Catalina swimsuits from 3 to 4 p.m. Thursday at La Jolla Walker Scott Store and from noon to 1 p.m. Saturday at the Linda Vista Store. She will also make a special guest appearance at a Walker Scott Hi Debber Varsity Teen Fashion Salute from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Sea World.

Selections from Miss Hitchcock's art collection will also be displayed during a private showing Thursday at the Fine Arts Gallery Auditorium. The public may view her works Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the art festival scheduled at Escondido Village Mall.

Love's In Fashion . . . Kiss Is King on Campus

In the Spring a college man's fancy lightly turns to what coeds have been thinking about all year. Kissing—lots of it!

The college man's interest in romance increases about 61 per cent in the springtime, according to a kissing survey, made recently by Colgate-Palmolive Company. In fact, the pursuit of Cupid was far ahead of the usual campus cutups, outstripping panty-raids, gold-fish consumption and bed-racing by a healthy margin.

College girls are delighted with the increased interest. In fact, they have only one complaint. Today's Hippies not-withstanding, coeds don't like to kiss bearded or mustachioed men. Seventy-six per cent turned thumbs down on face fuzz. Some complained that it scratched or tickled. Others felt it was distracting and one girl figured it was like kissing her terrior.

In a fellow's favor was the fact that most girls . . . 78 per cent . . . expected to be kissed after their first date. If a guy doesn't at least try to kiss them after the first evening out, the girls begin to wonder what's wrong—with him!

When asked whether they "brushed" before dating, 94 per cent said "yes". Just under half did so to ensure fresh breath. A good percentage brushed from habit and the remainder because they were swayed by today's commercials.

What are the elements of good kissing? According to University of Missouri coeds, physical attraction played an important role. Sixty per cent voted it most important as opposed to 26 per cent at U.C.L.A. West Coast coeds put mutual affection first. And one unhappy miss, remembering her first encounter, reported, "Anything, except two people wearing braces!"

Asked whether bright teeth and a fresh breath gave the mouth sex appeal, 93 per cent of the coeds answered an emphatic "yes" One girl stated the greatest looking guy can turn her off if he has dingy teeth or offensive breath.

Fellows like a girl to close her eyes when they kiss her. And she does, 98½ per cent of the time! Occasionally she'll peek to see if he closes his eyes. But mostly she wants to savor the moment and does so with her eyes closed.

Like all young generations in the first blush of spring, today's college crowd has a healthy disregard of fear. When the kissing survey, conducted on behalf of Ultra Brite, asked them to comment on the statement "kissing is unhygenic", the whole country answered in unison, "could be, but who cares?"

Torrey Pines

Prime Acreage Is Sold

A 17.7 acre parcel of Torrey Pines land was sold to a Los Angeles biochemical firm for $434,100 by the City Council Thursday.

The firm, Calbiochem, has announced plans to construct a $2 million, 70,000 square foot international headquarters at the site by 1970. The firm also has a five year option to purchase an additional six acres for $132,400.

Dr. William Drell, Calbiochem president, told the City Council that the proposed structure would also include extensive pharmaceutical research and development facilities. The development will be constructed north of Gulf General Atomic and will have about 350 employees.

Calbiochem will vacate its present Pasadena headquarters to locate in San Diego. It also has offices in Switzerland.

The firm is involved with research and development in the areas of nucleic acids, isotopic biochemicals, diagnostic re-agents, enzymes and metabolic compounds for use in laboratory research.

The La Jolla firm of Mosher and Drew has been retained to design the headquarters building.

To Planners

Send In Your Complaint

Clairemont residents have been urged to complain.

They can single out crowded parking, the numerous service stations, overhead utilities, or any other dislike in connection with construction or planning and their complaints will be recorded and studied.

The Clairemont Mesa Development Committee hopes to have the thoughts of the community in developing a long-range community plan.

Fredrick Schoelkopf, committee chairman, said his group has developed tentative planning objectives and urges area citizens to comment on them. "Our committee is concerned with the utilization of more than 2,000 acres of vacant canyon land, the spread of strip commercial development, the large number of service stations in being and planned and overhead utilities."

Among the public facilities proposed by the committee are parks, hospitals and recreational use of select canyons.

Complaints and suggestions should be sent to Schoelkopf, 3535 Ethan Allen Ave.; Charles L. Robins, 4266 Mt. Abernathy Ave.; Mrs. Louis Rotert, 2258 Garfield Rd.; or Mrs. Donald Bush, 4009 Mt. Blackburn Ave.

Juvenile Expert Talks To PTA On Discipline

Bernard Schwartz, Director of Juvenile Services of the San Diego Probation Office, will speak on "Discipline and How It Affects Juveniles" at the April 2 meeting of the Andersen School PTA. The meeting will be held in the school auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

"We are urging the fifth and sixth grade students to attend this meeting with their parents since we feel these students are at an age when they should become aware of how discipline affects their lives," said Mrs. George Fuhrman, school principal.

Officers for the coming year were elected at a recent meeting. They are: Mrs. Jack Lawry, president; Mrs. Leon Feigenbutz, first vice president; Mrs. Russell Hansen, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Umstead, third vice president; Mrs. Alfred Norvell, recording secretary; Mrs. Jack Christian, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Dennis Allman, treasurer; Mrs. William Jordan, historian; Mrs. Don Spurlock, auditor.

The hostesses for this meeting will be the first grade mothers. The student council will be in charge of the flag presentation.

Chateau Ville Residents Say Yes To Project

More than 60 per cent of the residents in the Chateau Ville subdivision on Mount Soledad quickly approved a $67,000 undergrounding project last weekend.

Petition passers reported success early this week to John Fowler, city Streets Superintendent. Fowler said the next move is to seek City Council approval of the project.

Fowler said that the final total of those in favor may hit 70 per cent after out-of-town owners are contacted by letter this week. Petitions with additional names were also expected.

The project will underground utility and telephone wires in the 82-lot subdivision. The project will be financed by assessment district bonds.

Actually, the automobile of today is the world's most effective tax collector.

Men must show up well at the showdown to be winners.

Keep your troubles to yourself or they will expand.

SENTINEL BLACK OUT BINGO CONTEST RULES

Contestants must be 18 years or older, on or before the start of each monthly contest. Full time Sentinel and Peninsula News employees are not eligible.

HOW TO ENTER: All paid subscribers to the Sentinel and Peninsula News will receive a Free Bingo Card from their carrier boy prior to each monthly contest. Persons other than paid subscribers can enter by obtaining a Bingo Card at the Sentinel Circulation Office, 2724 Garnet Ave., Pacific Beach, Monday through Saturday, 8:30 to 5:00 p.m. before the start of each monthly contest. Only one Bingo card will be issued to a dwelling each month for the length of the contest.

HOW IT WORKS: 25 numbers will be drawn from a "Bingo Basket" each week. These numbers will be published exclusively in the Classified Section each issue to appear in Thursday's paper, and 15 on Sunday. All numbers will be returned to the "Bingo Basket" after each weekly drawing.

HOW TO WIN: Match the numbers that are published each issue with those that appear on your Bingo Card. All numbers drawn are "alive" for the entire month's contest. When all numbers on your card are "blacked out" (be sure all numbers are still readable), you must present your card at the Sentinel Circulation Office no later than 6 p.m. Friday, following Thursday's paper, or 6 p.m. Monday, following Sunday's paper to be eligible to win.

CASH PRIZES: A new $25 Jackpot will start after a Jackpot has been won. It will continue to increase $25 each Sunday until another winner has been determined. If there is more than one winner, the cash prize will be divided equally. All cards and numbers will remain valid until the end of that month's contest, when new cards will be issued and new numbers will be drawn. However, all remaining money in the Jackpot will carry over from month to month.
Winners will be announced in the Sentinel and the Peninsula News.

Anyone requesting further information may call The Sentinel Circulation office at 274-3212.

Acting on behalf of all area scouts, the six boys will also give each supervisor two complimentary tickets to the one-day annual event at the Del Mar Fairgrounds.

The proclamation will be presented by Supervisor Henry A. Boney, who is also immediate past president of the San Diego County Council, Boys Scouts of America.

Boney will commend the county's 29,000 scouts for their activities and will say the local program "builds character, citizenship and physical fitness in our youth."

The scouts are hoping to draw more than 60,000 San Diegans to the 19th annual Scout Fair, showcasing how "Scouting Builds America."

Ticket sales by scouts throughout the county will begin April 6.

Veterans May Be Eligible For Monthly Cash

T. G. Goetz, director, County of San Diego Veteran's Service Department today advised that many eligible veterans may receive a special monthly allowance for blindness, or, if in need of constant aid and attendance by another person.

The current pension law permits the Veterans Administration to furnish physician-prescribed drugs and medicines to veterans who are in receipt of aid and attendance.

Further, a lesser amount may be paid to those who are permanently "housebound"; however, drugs and medicines are not included.

Additional information may be obtained at Room 1301 Courthouse, 220 West Broadway, San Diego, Calif. 92101. Telephone 239-7711, Ext. 316.

Lessons learned by experience seldom need explanations.
